

Canadian Environmental Grantmakers' Network

What members have to say about CEGN:

- CEGN is a small dynamic organization that has consistently delivered, and built on, meaningful services. It's critical as a connection to other grant-makers and as a source of information and understanding of the sector.
- I find the CEGN membership to be a highly informed and articulate group of people who care passionately about the state of Canada's environment and the strength and effectiveness of the environmental movement. I feel inspired when I have discussions with these individuals. I get new ideas, I receive insight into issues through these discussions. The environmental sector needs the type of coordination that CEGN provides.
- Talk about value for money! [The staff] is extraordinary, and the membership on the whole seems to be an open, reflective and innovative group of people and organizations. Very satisfying example of a network.
- I have always been a strong supporter of CEGN and environmental grantmaking and credit the organization with broadening my scope, experience and knowledge. I would not be where I am today without the benefits of CEGN as an important network of funders.
- I very much appreciate the effort to bring together the common interests of funders working on a wide range of issues across a very big country!
- CEGN is a focused, efficient and highly professional organization doing outstanding work on a very modest budget.
- I would recommend CEGN to community foundations, even the smaller ones. It is a very easy way to connect with the community of environmental funders, make connections and to learn what others are doing
- As a US-based funder with grantmaking interests in Ontario, CEGN helps me stay abreast of issues of importance to Canadian funders.
- As a program officer at a US-based foundation, I find a major benefit to be keeping up on news, perspectives, and key issues germane to working in Canada...the kind of insider wisdom that we might not get south of the border.
